JUEMUN Fosters Global Citizenship

Young people yearn to be connected with people throughout the world in ways that enhance the quality of their lives. More than ever before, we are all aware that our lives are shared, but tragically, not always in ways that are just. As awareness of the issues that connect and enrich, divide and threaten our world grows ever more sophisticated, we need JUEMUN to allow university students to shine the light of their natural compassion, and to apply their commonsense on old and absurd problems.

Today's revolution in our means of communication can spur change for good by enhancing the role of the individual in building a consensus for peace and justice everywhere. At the same time, the interconnectedness of our world may amplify the dangers of miscommunication and the impact of maliciousness. We may be at a pivotal moment in global communication. It is characterized by a potential to push the peoples of the world apart, and a counterbalancing growing sense that we are all a part of a Global Community. JUEMUN is committed to nurturing a sense of truly global citizenship.

JUEMUN is an important member of the numerous and diverse global communities that have come together to try to make the world a just place for more people. JUEMUN and other international youth conferences play considerable, often underestimated roles, in encouraging students to find ways they can usefully contribute to the global community. Friendships formed among conference colleagues, destined to last a lifetime, will serve the interests of peace.

JUEMUN 2017 recognizes that women have a critical role to play in all of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals approved by the UN in 2015 that target women's equality and empowerment as an objective, and a solution. Goal 5, the stand-alone gender goal is dedicated to achieving these ends. Women's empowerment is the link to sustainable development.

Message from the founder/director of the Peace Education Center and Peace Education Graduate Degree Program at Teachers College, Columbia University and leading civil society originator of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 on women, peace, and security.

To the Participants in JUEMUN 2017

You undertake your deliberations at a time in which the theme issues of the session are crucial to the future of our planet, and to the major threats to that future, the ecological crisis, war and weaponry, and gender inequality. I congratulate you on engaging in this exercise of global citizenship, learning about the United Nations, the key institution for confronting the threats and resolving the issues, learning that is essential to the responsible exercise of global citizenship. In future, some of you may use what you learn in this model UN by working within the UN or other global institutions. All of you, whatever career you may pursue, will be preparing for active and effective participation in global civil society.

Our common future lies in the capacity of global civil society to guide these international institutions toward the achievement of a peaceful, just and sustainable world order, the purpose of the United Nations and of the Sustainable Development Goals so crucial to the work of the Commission on the Status of Women. Since the first International Women's Year in 1975 CSW has been the setting for advancing the core goals embraced by women's movements throughout the world, equality, development and peace. For decades, it has been a venue in which women of civil society have interacted with the UN toward these goals, contributing to some major landmarks in international standards and UN policy, among them SDGs and Security Council Resolution 1325 on Women Peace and Security, the most widely known Security Council resolution so significant to the empowerment of women. As you conduct your sessions, think about the interrelationship between these two landmarks, about how women's full participation in all matters of peace and security is essential to peace and equality, without which none of the other 16 sustainable development goals can be met, without which we cannot save "this endangered planet." The "fate of the earth" is in your hands.

Good luck and good learning in JUEMUN 2017

Welcome Message from the Chair of Kobe International Center for Cooperation and Communication, Chair of KIC, and Former Mayor of Kobe

I would like to extend my warmest appreciation to all the participants for joining JUEMUN 2017. It's a great pleasure to have you here in Kobe.

As you might know, Kobe is an international port city. The modern port of Kobe, as we know it today, started on January 1868, when Japan abandoned its isolation policy. Since then, Kobe has been making progress in conjunction with the development of its port. Various cultures and commodities have been introduced to Japan through the port, and thanks to it, Kobe is known as an “international city”.

Today, the City of Kobe has a population of 1.53 million, including 45,000 foreign residents from 120 countries and territories. Kobe has eight international schools, many kinds of religious institutions, social clubs, and many hospitals & clinics whose medical staff speak English and other foreign languages. Kobe is said to be one of the most livable cities for foreign people in Japan.

We are now celebrating of the 150th Anniversary of our port.

Therefore, I think it is the right time and place for holding an international exchange event such as JUEMUN in Kobe.

I sincerely hope that the experience and knowledge you are going to gain through this event will be useful toward your future endeavors.

Lastly, I would like to send my heartfelt wishes of health and success for all those who have been involved in the JUEMUN 2017.

Tatsuo Yada

JUEMUN 2017 Honorable Chair

Chair of Kobe International Center for Cooperation and Communication

Chair of KIC, and Former Mayor of Kobe

Welcome Message from the President of Kobe City University of Foreign Studies

Always aim for high ideals

I would like to extend my greetings to all the JUEMUN 2017 participants. Welcome to Kobe City University of Foreign Studies.

In a chaotic modern society, it is difficult to change the situation with just ideals or even through realistic measures. Having ideals based on reality will change the world. The power of negotiations will bridge the reality and the ideal. The United Nations is a place for negotiations to realize such high ideals.

In other words, obtaining a wide knowledge and strong bargaining power is the first step to create an ideal world. It also matches Kobe City University of Foreign Studies' motto,

always aim for high ideals

I hope that you all join JUEMUN in order to approach such goals.

Sincerely,

Akihiro Sashi

President, Kobe City University of Foreign Studies

MUN and JUEMUN

What is Model United Nations (MUN)?

MUN is an academic simulation of the United Nations that includes debate, public speaking and international affairs. At a Model United Nations conference, participants, who are referred to as delegates, are given the opportunity to represent different countries on different committees.

Delegates participate in discussions on issues ranging from world conflict and international security, to human rights and education. Through these exchanges, delegates are able to develop and refine skills such as collaboration, decision-making, critical thinking and verbal communication.

During a conference, delegates work together to create practical and innovative solutions to the issue they are discussing. These solutions are then incorporated into a plan called a working paper and then introduced to all of the delegates in the form of a draft resolution. The draft resolutions are then amended and voted on in, hopes of passing and becoming a resolution. While most MUN conferences only last a few days, delegates often leave more interested in international affairs, become more aware, more educated and more thoughtful citizens of the future.

About JUEMUN

Japan University English Model United Nations, commonly referred to as JUEMUN, is an annual faculty-organized conference held in the Kansai region of Japan. Since its inception in 2010, JUEMUN has grown into Japan's premier English MUN experience for university students around the world. JUEMUN participants come from places near and far bringing an amazing array of backgrounds and perspectives, resulting in an exciting, engaging, and unforgettable simulation. Our 2017 conference will bring together 174 participants from 45 different universities and 25 countries around the world.

JUEMUN was founded by Canadians, Professor Craig Smith and Associate Professor Lori Zenuk-Nishide with the leadership and support of Professor Donna Tatsuki, who have combined their MUN experience of over 50 years to offer a unique and innovative learning opportunity for university students around the world. The annual JUEMUN conference is hosted on a rotating basis between Kyoto University of Foreign Studies and Kobe City University of Foreign Studies.

Each JUEMUN agenda is chosen after careful extensive deliberation and discussion by the founders. These chosen agendas are always issues of great importance to the world that need to be addressed with comprehensive and innovative solutions. At each JUEMUN conference, participants experience cooperative hands-on learning, allowing them to confront an issue in English from the perspective of their assigned country. Through these experiences in the conference committee sessions, participants develop an appreciation of differing viewpoints, the frustration of negotiation, the rewards of cooperation, and a broader view of the human side of international relations and diplomacy. The dedicated conference support and guidance from JUEMUN faculty advisors as well as the knowledge and experience shared by the invited speakers, truly make each JUEMUN conference a professional and educational experience of the highest quality.

JUEMUN Press

JUEMUN Press is made up of students who are interested in journalism. Each JUEMUN journalist studies the background and meeting procedure before collaborating, exploring, and engaging to create digital news or video formats in English that are shared on the JUEMUN Website <http://juemun.org>. The faculty advisory is Atsuko Shigesawa, an experienced and renowned journalist.

TABLING A DRAFT RESOLUTION

1. Each committee finishes their working paper on their committee computer.
2. Each committee saves their working paper on their committee USB memory stick and submits it to the Chairs by 5:00 pm on Saturday.
3. The Chairs get faculty advisers to check the grammar and layout between 5:00 pm and 5:30 pm on Saturday. The Chairs let each committee know if it is ok.
4. If a committee's tabled draft resolution is ok, the Assistant Chairs will print off a hard copy and ask conference volunteers to make copies before 6:00 pm on Saturday.
5. Copies of each draft resolution will be placed on the four regional bloc tables.

MAKING AMENDMENTS TO DRs

1. In regional blocs, the representative(s) from each committee will explain their tabled draft resolution (DR) line by line to the other members of their regional bloc. Amendments can be proposed after each operative clause is read. For each amendment, predetermined bloc representatives (Scribes) will fill out an amendment form for each amendment and submit the right side of the amendment form to the Chairs. (By the end of day 2)
2. All members of each committee will come to the front of the meeting room in informal debate to read the operative section of their tabled DR line by line. The Chair will ask for amendments after each operative clause is read. The predetermined bloc representatives (Scribes) will introduce amendments on behalf of their regional bloc. The Chair will moderate the debate and the Secretary will show the amendments to each tabled draft resolution on the screen. All delegates will make note of the introduced amendments on their copy of the DRs with a coloured pencil or pen.
3. Copies of the amendment forms for each committee's DR will be made by the Assistant Chairs. These copies will be delivered to each committee for their reference.
4. Delegates will then go into Informal Informal Debate in Committee Groups to discuss the proposed amendments to their tabled DRs. Committee members will decide whether the proposed amendments are friendly or unfriendly. If friendly, the committee will circle friendly on the amendment form and tell the Bureau. If unfriendly, they circle unfriendly, tell the bureau, and try to negotiate a revision in informal informal debate in their Regional Bloc meetings.
5. Delegates will then go into Informal Informal Debate in Regional Bloc groups to discuss the unfriendly amendments and try to negotiate a revision that the regional bloc and committee can agree on.
6. Delegates then go into Informal Informal Debate in their Committees to make make final decisions on the negotiated unfriendly amendments and inform the Bureau of any negotiated text.
7. Committee members once again come up to the front and only read operative clauses that need to be addressed and share what they are willing to agree to. If there are disagreements from any of the delegates, the negotiated amendment will be thrown out and the original amendment will be voted on in the voting process.

Global Negotiation Symposium Keynote and Featured Speakers

Michiko Kuroda (Mercy College, New York)

Successful Negotiation for Cooperation

The workshop will present interest-based negotiation that leads to win-win results and cooperation. You will learn about successful negotiation, key negotiation skills for success, and crucial communication skills that will contribute to making your negotiation a big success. Using her thirty years of international experience in negotiations, Prof. Kuroda will make the workshop interactive with engaging activities, such as hands-on exercises and role-plays, to help you retain what you have learned and gain vital skills. By the end of the workshop, the participants will have acquired practical, useful tools and skills for negotiation, cooperation, and collaboration with negotiation counterparts.

Andrea Paul (Monash University, Faculty of Medicine)

Negotiation in Practice

This workshop describes performance of negotiation discourse (moves, functions, language) using an instrument for needs analysis, teaching, and assessment of spoken interaction in negotiation. The Spoken Interaction Negotiation Instrument (SINI) is based in Systemic Functional Linguistics, interactional sociolinguistics, and intercultural communication theory. Language teaching has conceptualized spoken interaction as unstructured, and consequently difficult to teach or directly assess. This approach streamlines the relationship between learning, feedback and assessment. In this workshop, you will learn how to use the instrument for these purposes, observe negotiation in action at JUEMUN, and discuss your observation and its implications and applications for your practice.

Jay Klaphake (Kyoto University of Foreign Studies)

Ten Lessons for Being a Better Negotiator

The World Economic Forum lists negotiation as the 5th most important job skill today, and predicts it will remain one of the top 10 skills in 2020. This presentation will provide a theoretical and practical introduction to being a better negotiator - focusing on the theories, skills, and abilities needed to analyze, plan, conduct, and evaluate effective negotiation practices. Through examples and role plays, we will study the nature and dynamics of negotiation among parties with both conflicting and shared interests and discover how we can work toward achieving mutual agreement. You can't always get what you want, but if you negotiate more effectively, sometimes well you might find you get what you need.

J. Barrie Roberts (Chapman University Fowler School of Law)

Getting to "Yes" as a Second Language

Negotiation and English language training share a core mission: increasing "understanding." This workshop demonstrates specific and exciting ways to use Getting to Yes to teach combined lessons in both subjects, promoting fluency in English and skills in cross-cultural negotiation and communication, problem-solving, critical thinking and leadership in one fell swoop.

David Kluge (Nanzan University)

Non-confrontational Debate: Debate Skills for Collaborative Communication

Debate is usually seen as a confrontational activity: one team versus another team with one team winning and the other losing. While this is true of formal debate as practiced in secondary and tertiary education, there are many debate skills that can be used to constructively cooperate in communicating a message. This workshop will focus on the teaching, learning, and practice of such logic and position-creating skills. The goal of the workshop is to help the participants to increase their collaborative debate communication skills and learn how to teach these skills.

Global Negotiation Symposium @JUEMUN A Faculty Development MUN Innovation

The Global Negotiation Symposium provides an opportunity for researchers, negotiation practitioners, and language teachers to share their insights and best practices in order to significantly enrich the pedagogic environment for spoken interaction for both non-native and native speakers of English. Knowledge of and practical familiarization with the pragmatic norms of negotiation within relevant communities of practice is an important aspect of socialization for native speakers and foreign language learners alike.

One outstanding innovation of the Global Negotiation Symposium will be workshop opportunities for participants to observe students negotiating at JUEMUN and learn about a Model United Nations simulation as a community of practice.

One of the most important the 21st century skills is the ability to negotiate constructive resolutions in the face of conflicts of interest. Negotiation is a form of communication that requires more than just language ability. It requires being able to listen to and communicate with others within a milieu of diverse language abilities, academic, professional and cultural backgrounds in an increasingly global society. Negotiation is problem solving where the bringing together of two or more parties with seemingly divergent interests requires creativity and involves the expansion of the solution choice-set to enable a win-win situation.

The Global Negotiation Symposium bridges theory, research and practice of negotiation in order to support teachers with practical skills, language and evaluative frameworks.

When negotiating in English in a multicultural and multilingual environment, Japanese are stereotypically known to adopt roles as observers rather than as active participants because they are relying on a Japanese cultural approach to negotiation. In Japanese education, problem solving and critical/creative thinking have not been valued at the core of learning and innovation. The 21st century calls for educational systems to ensure that their curriculum design and pedagogical practices emphasize and develop competencies that are crucial for successful negotiation. Our common goal is to prepare students to solve complex problems that are associated with living in a technological, competitive, and globally connected world.
